

Artist bio: Deborah Zwetsch

Deborah Zwetsch is a fine artist who works in a variety of mediums including painting, printmaking, sculpture, and surface design.

She has had five one-person shows in Philadelphia displaying her paintings and prints. Recently, she and a fellow artist exhibited a collaborative show at the Alliance for the Arts in Ft. Myers called We Contain Multitudes, featuring both of their work collectively and individually.

Deb has shown her silk work at many prestigious shows, including the New York Gift Show, ACC/Baltimore, Magic, and Las Vegas. Her scarves have been displayed in the Smithsonian's Renwick Gallery, as well as in many museum gift shops and boutiques throughout the country. She moved to Florida in 2006 because of its beauty and nature. Residing on Pine Island she continues to create in her studio as a printmaker, and surface designer.

Deborah owns zwear.co, a print-on-demand website featuring her textile designs. For the past 25 years, she has produced original art on silk for scarves and clothing – “art that is ready to wear.”
